

Dear Sir/Madam,

Re: Please say no to the WECHAR bill (Water Efficiency via Carbon Harvesting and Restoration Act of 2009)

I am very concerned about the proposed WECHAR Act of 2009 and hope that you will advise and vote against it. I am concerned both about support for an unproven technology and about the impacts of vegetation clearance, including salt cedar removal, on biodiversity and soils.

The WECHAR bill would mandate federal loan guarantees for biochar research, development and commercialisation. While soil science research in general should be supported, it is wrong to require scientists to establish the 'environmental benefits' of a technology which is so far unproven. A review of the literature indicates that there are numerous concerns that could lead to environmental harms rather than benefits. For this reason, the UNEP has cautioned: "Research is still at a preliminary stage and large-scale biochar deployment is inadvisable until these uncertainties are resolved." (tinyurl.com/nvak7e). Although there are examples of indigenous farmers' successful use of charcoal, mixed with highly biodiverse organic residues under specific circumstances, there is no evidence that large-scale charcoal application by itself makes soils more fertile in the long-term or helps to mitigate climate change. If small charcoal particles become airborne, they can have the same significant warming impact as black soot. Furthermore, it is not known how much charcoal carbon remains in soils for how long and there is evidence that charcoal could cause existing soil carbon to be emitted as CO₂. Impacts on soil fertility are variable, possibly short-lived and there are no field studies to back up the claims made by lobbyists. Large-scale vegetation removal, including from National Parks cannot be considered carbon negative.

The WECHAR Bill is based on the assumption that large-scale removal of salt cedars from the Mojave Desert, pinyon pine and juniper trees from the Great Basin and 'excess biomass', including beetle-infested wood, from the Intermountain West will help restore natural water flows and reduce fire risks. However, there is significant evidence pointing to the opposite. Many studies suggest that salt cedars do not require more water than native trees and that they survive along river banks where natural water flow has been disrupted by hydro dams or water diversion. Their removal commonly results in river banks without any tree cover, with less diversity and in more soil erosion. Many bird species, amongst them the endangered Southern Willow Flycatcher, depend on salt cedars in many areas. Removal of pinyon pines, juniper and other trees without active ecological restoration can diminish biodiversity, with over 70 bird species depending on pinyon-juniper ecosystems. Finally, logging of beetle-infested forests has been shown to delay and stunt forest regrowth and it has been shown to reduce fire risks (tinyurl.com/y8nuegy). Even if in some cases vegetation removal could be justified, turning a significant proportion of biomass into a product with no proven value and potential risks – i.e. biochar – makes no sense.

I therefore hope that you will reject this bill.

Yours faithfully,
